

Crisis and Sad event training for schools and educational settings

Delivered by Hertfordshire Educational Psychology Services

Wednesday, 6 February 2019

This training is designed to equip schools in how to manage a significant event which may affect the school community be it a bereavement (with a direct e.g. staff member/pupil or indirect e.g a parent impact), a major crisis or other event which could impact on the day to day running of the school.

The training is split into two sections. The morning is developed for SLT and school leaders. It will cover the psychological impact of bereavement and trauma on adults and young people. We will then focus on action planning and the steps that should be taken to manage a significant event.

Morning Session (9:30am to 12:30pm) – for SLT and school leaders

The afternoon is for support staff and those who may be working more directly with children who have been affected by bereavement. Again we will cover models of bereavement and then explore and try out a number of activities which aim to support children and young people in managing their grief.

Afternoon Session (1pm to 4pm) - for staff working directly with children

A crisis/sad event is not anything that a school wants to happen in their community. However, unfortunately things do happen. Being well prepared in these circumstances can support school staff in being able to manage an emotional situation with greater sense of control.
